

AUCKLAND BRANCH TRANSPORTATION GROUP presents

Daniel Sauter

“Is Walking Transport?”

The Presenter

Daniel Sauter is from Urban Mobility Research, Zurich, Switzerland. Daniel has been active in the past 25 years as a sociologist and researcher in the promotion of walking, road danger reduction and, the analysis of mobility patterns and the creative of inclusive public spaces and their related policies.

The Presentation

Sustainability is high on the agenda in most countries. This has also has raised the profile of walking and cycling. However, there are a number of perceptions and paradoxes that undermine good intentions!

- What are these perceptions and how do they influence the policies?
- What are their effects on planning and design of the public realm?
- Which aspects are overlooked and which ones taken for granted?
- What could we do so that excellent walking and sustainability strategies actually get implemented?

Based on examples and experiences, the presentation will take us on a little stroll through the world of images, data and the social dimensions of walking and public spaces.
